ANA Coin Press – "Diverse Denominations"

In the modern era, Americans have become accustomed to a monetary system with only four circulating coins. But the familiar penny, nickel, dime, and quarter actually represent a historic low in denominational diversity.

At one time or another, fifteen different denominations have been made for circulation by the United States Mint, from the lowly copper 1/2 cent to the glittering gold $20, and until the 20th century there were often 8-10 different coins in active circulation. In fact, over the course of American history there have been eight different coin types valued at five cents or less.

The Story Behind the Peace Dollar

By: Adhitri Sethuraghavan

The Peace dollar was designed by Anthony de Francisci and was first designed as a commemorative to celebrate the peace at the end of World War I. The design of the Peace dollar was expected to be made beautiful and full of character. The model used was the designer's wife, whose name was Teresa de Francisci.

At first, the announced design was not favored by the public because part of the design showed a large figure of an eagle perched on a broken sword. The design was trying to show that since the Great War (World War I), there was now peace. Instead, the public felt that it symbolized defeat and surrender. Many times in world history, handing an opponent a broken sword was considered a sign of surrender. So, the U.S. Mint quickly removed the broken sword from the coins.

August Money Museum Deaccession Auction

This month's Money Museum Deaccession Auction will take place Thursday, August 19-26. Collectors can view and bid on items during the week – all of which are duplicate, mostly low-value specimens already represented in the Money Museum collection. ANA members receive a 20% discount on their winning bids! All proceeds will support the educational mission of the museum.

Several dozen auction lots will be available at each auction, which will focus on world coins, paper money, tokens and medals, random American coins, mint sets and numerous stock certificates. The auction will eventually expand to include duplicate books and catalogs from the ANA Library and ANA-branded objects from the Money Museum store.

Check the Money Museum eBay store every third Thursday of the month for new lots. YN Dollars are NOT allowed to be used to purchase these deaccessioned items – YN Dollars can only be used to "purchase" items in the official ANA YN Auctions held each month.
